

Slowest growth in money supply and Largest yield curve inversion in over 40 years, which is one of the most reliable indicators for recession. Why would the fed want to further pressure financial conditions in lite of falling inflation?

